was any indication. The Razorbacks, who were dub-bed the "passingest team in the nation" in the late 1930s, tossed a lotal of 46 passes in their final ull-scale head-knocking session before the opener against Hardin-Quarterback Don Christian's 'red'' team, which probably corresponded to Head Coach Jack Mitchell's first unit, threw 24 passes, completed half of them and gained 306 yards via the air route. Four were intercepted.

Sophomore James Monroe White crew which featured are allsoph backfield, were somewhat less successful, completing 9 of 22 passes for 77 yards. However, only two fell into red hands. Monroe moved up as White quarterback as a result of co-Captain George Walker's injury a week ago. Walker, who has started every game for the Porkers the past two years, probably will miss the first two games this season because 🌰 🛚 his bad knee, The running game of the Reds, who soundly outplayed and out-scored the Whites 46-27, featured the work of halfback Rogers over-Overbey, a 155-pound speedster n his senior year, carried eight times for 32 yards, passed once for a touchdown and caught two passes for touchdowns. The Reds gained a total of 198 yards rushing, For the Whites, half book Donnie Stone turned in yeoman work, toting the pigskin 13 times for 100 yards. He entered the end zone twice, taking laterials from his teammates. Mitchell said that the team looked "awfully tired" but he said that they were playing "more methodically" than the previous The Razorbacks came out of the scrimmage with no new injuries Tackle Richard Bennett was still sidelined as a "precautionary" measure along with Walker and forth string quarterback Billy Atkinson.
